

FourStar Conducts Economic Roundtable Sessions with Dave Altig, Director of Research at the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta

March 12, 2020

CHICAGO-- FourStar Wealth Advisors conducted a series of economic roundtable sessions with David E. Altig, Executive Vice President and Director of Research at the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta. The meetings focused on the U.S. economic outlook and a discussion on research to mitigate the “Benefits Cliff”. This “cliff” has direct wage and benefit impacts on many working Americans looking to advance their skills and economic position, while also affecting employers looking to keep and attract a vibrant workforce.

“FourStar is in a unique position to host economic sessions that gather decision makers from the Federal Reserve, and those from the public and private sector, to promote important public policy discussions,” said Brian Kasal, Founder and CEO of FourStar Wealth Advisors. “The meetings were an exceptional opportunity for FourStar clients to participate in discussions that affect public policies across the nation.”

A total of three sessions were held over the course of a month, in Reno, NV (2/6/20), in Wilmington, DE (2/26/20), and in Boston, MA (3/5/20) and featured a roundtable discussion with business, government and non-profit leaders, followed by luncheons for all participants and FourStar clients.
